

Share

Tweet

Share

ADAPT INTERNATIONAL BULLETINADAPT
www.adapt.it
UNIVERSITY PRESS

ISSN 2281-4469

In collaboration with

Institute for Workplace Studies, ILR School, Cornell University

Monash University

The UCLA Institute for Research on Labor and Employment

The University of Szeged, Faculty of Law

The Upjohn Institute for Employment Research

James Cook University

Centre for International and Comparative Studies (DEAL) Marco Biagi Department of Economics UNIMORE

Bulletin n. 7/2020Labour Law*Covid-19 crisis makes clear a new concept of 'worker' is overdue

N. Countouris et al., Social Europe, April 9, 2020

The coronavirus and the world of work: renewed labour law questions

F. Hendrickx, Regulating for Globalization, April 1, 2020

Industrial Relations*Labour in the boardroom: The effects of codetermination on firm performance and wages

J. Heining et. al., VoxEu, April 8, 2020

The reinterpretation of the principle of horizontal subsidiarity in European social law

M. Delfino, WP C.S.D.L.E. "Massimo D'Antona".INT – 152/2020, April 2020

Labour Market*The large and unequal impact of COVID-19 on workers

A. Adams-Prassl et al., VoxEu, April 8, 2020

Governments' Responses to COVID-19

ILO Actrav, April 6, 2020

COVID-19 ADAPT
Press Release*Coronavirus Emergency:
Learning from one another*Coronavirus Emergency: Learning from one another

Dear Friends and Readers,

As researchers of the ADAPT School of Labour Law and Industrial Relations, one thing we have been trying to teach in our own small way over the years is to learn from one another. We do so at our international events in Bergamo and Hoboken and we want to do it now – both as citizens and researchers of employment and labour issues – as Italy faces an exceptional health emergency.

As you know, our country is grappling to contain the quick, pervasive Covid-19 outbreak. An underestimation of the problem has contributed to virus spread, leading the government to place the whole country under lockdown. This is a drastic and somehow unprecedented move, at least in times of peace. We are writing to you not to protest panic, but to make sure that all our colleagues and friends living in those countries where the virus is starting to spread can learn from our mistakes and avoid facing our same situation. This is in consideration of the fact that infectious rates in Europe and elsewhere show the same upward trend recorded in Italy, and the state of affairs is likely to worsen. Consequently, the following is what we have learnt to date:

- as members of the academic community, you should ask policy-makers to put in place drastic and clear cut measures, and ensure that employees and workers are not left alone to bear the burden of this emergency, as the latter risk losing their job or being required to work in unsafe work conditions.

- work should be carried out remotely where possible. It is important not to go out if it is not necessary to do so.

- it is fundamental that people do not leave their homes unless strictly needed (e.g. to buy food and medicines), for health reasons or urgent work situations;

- it is important to put forward substantial measures immediately, in order to protect employees and workers and to support the economy in a non-zero-sum way (e.g. production and sales).

These measures cannot be seen as a panacea, but rather as steps that sooner or later all governments will need to make. It is then better to do this as early as possible, before the situation worsens.

We hope this message will be useful.

At this link you will also find more technical information we have produced for companies and their legal consultants, trade unions and workers operating in Italy. It is only available in Italian.

EU ProjectsREWIR*Chronic diseases - Open
call for Survey Answers

Job Skill Requirements: Levels and Trends

M. J. Handel, MIT Work of the Future Working Paper 02-2020,
April 1, 2020

The long-term consequences of missing a term of school

S. Burgess, H. Sievertsen, IZA World of Labor, 31 March, 2020

Wellness, Health & Safety at Work

COVID-19: EU-OSHA guidance for the workplace

EU-OSHA, April 6, 2020

Is Precarious Employment Bad for Worker Health? The Case of Zero Hours Contracts in the UK

E. Farina et al., IZA DP No. 13116, April 2020

Employment & Demography

Migrant Workers: the Forgotten Victims of COVID-19

ITCILO, April 8, 2020

Elderly population across EU regions

Eurostat, April 2, 2020

Women and aviation: Quality jobs, attraction and retention

D. Seligson, ILO Working Paper No. 331, March 31, 2020

Geography & Work

Institutions and the fortunes of territories

A. Rodríguez-Pose, doi: 10.1111/rsp3.12277, April 1, 2020

How will Coronavirus affect jobs in different parts of the country?

E. Magrini, Centre for Cities, March 17, 2020

Welfare

Social enterprises and their ecosystems in Europe. Comparative synthesis report

C. Chiarini et al., European Commission, DG Employment, March 31, 2020

Covid-19 cruelly highlights inequalities and threatens to deepen them

Chronic diseases - Open Call for Survey Answers

Dear readers of ADAMPT's Bulletin,
Following the long-lasting research activity in the field of the inclusion of people affected by chronic diseases in the labour market, ADAMPT is now a partner in the international project RECHIV - Regaining Health in Work in the Age of Demographic Change through Inclusive Research. The initiative is coordinated by the European Commission and aims to study the role that regional actors in the EU national and company level play in addressing the working lives of EU citizens through work, retention and integration after exposure to chronic conditions. Against a background of demographic and technological change.

To this initiative, thanks to the contribution of our partners, we have just identified a survey specifically addressed to trade unions and employers' organisations in EU Member States to collect information and evidence that can provide by industrial relations in the field. We invite you to fill out the online survey and, through this, to contribute to the analysis and development of policies which aim to support people who return to work after serious illness or with a chronic condition.

The project, lasting from March 2019 to February 2021, is coordinated by CEPR - Centre for European Policy Studies, in addition to IZS, the main research IZS - Centre for European Labour Studies Institute (IS), Lucian Blaga University of Sibiu (UBS), University of Naples (UN), ADAMPT - Association for Innovation and Companies Studies in the Field of Labour Law and Industrial Relations (I), Dublin City University (DCU), Zira Area in the role of subcontractor (I), International Management Foundation (IMF).

Your opinions and experiences are very valuable to us and to the European Commission. Thanks for helping us carrying this message.

Online survey

ADAMPT's Chronic Diseases and Work Observatory

Online Survey

Publications

COVID-19 y relaciones de trabajo: escenario mundial de una pandemia

Relaciones Laborales y Derecho del Empleo Vol. 8, N. 1, Jan.-Mar. 2020

Intergenerational Divide and Employee Solidarity. Inclusive Bargaining as a Drive for Change in the Digital Era

E SOLIDARIETA
TRA LAVORATORI
La contrattazione inclusiva come leva del cambiamento
nell'era digitale

INTERGENERATIONAL DIVIDE
AND EMPLOYEE SOLIDARITY
Inclusive Bargaining as a Drive
for Change in the Digital Era

A cura di Domenico Iodice

ADAPT
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Discovered by the European Union

MEMBER OF

The material published in this bulletin is in the public domain and not copyrighted. It is a requirement of publication that posts to the bulletin to cite their source.

ISSN 2281-4469

For further information and collaboration: news@adaptinternational.it.

This message has been sent to: <<Email>>

Why have you received this email? | Unsubscribe | Update profile

Managing Editor

Emanuele Dagnino (ADAPT Research Fellow, Italy)

Editorial Board

